Nagaland being a biodiversity hot spot has numerous medicinal and aromatic plants yet to be researched. Hence, an awareness and sensitization on MAP and its importance with respect to Nagaland needs to be shared.

In the first technical session, Bodevi Shüya, Team members, NHBM shared on the topic “The prospect of honey bee” to the participants. He said that scientific bee keeping was practiced since 300 years back and it is just a modification of traditional bee keeping. He also shared that the bees need proper housing or shelter and prefer cleanliness for best sustenance and survival.

Different types of bee keeping such as over ground bee keeping, underground bee keeping, stingless modified hives were deliberated to them.
