Headed by him, LRD in 2016 again decided to revive coffee cultivation and learn about the new varieties of coffee seeds, how to plant and grow them in the cool and hilly climate of Nagaland.

Sema added that, Nagaland at present has nearly 10,000 hectares of coffee cultivation and it is taking steps to expand it to 50,000 hectares by 2030. LRD has exported 27.5 metric tonnes of coffee to the South African company, which signed an agreement to buy Nagaland coffee for 30 years. He said, 'Our aim is to generate at least one lakh jobs as Nagaland lacks industrial activities. Another aim is to prevent the impact of climate change by encouraging farmers to give up jhum (forests are slashed and burnt for farming) cultivation and switch over to coffee.'

DPO, Kohima, Dr. Menuosietuo Tseikha elaborated on the cycle of coffee plantation. He narrated that planting the seeds are carefully selected according to the unique micro climate, flavour and aroma and exceptional cup quality which will take approximately 3 to 4 years for the newly planted coffee trees to bear fruit. The fruit, called the State level National Press Day, 2021 was held at DIPR Conference Hall, Kohima on 16th November 2021 with the theme 'Who is not afraid of media?' with Advisor to Chief Minister, Abu Metha as the special guest.

In his speech, Advisor, Abu Metha said that the DIPR was called as the propaganda machine of the Government that is in power but that narrative has changed with the passing of time. IPR has the responsibility of highlighting the achievements of the State Government. He asked the Department to step out of the old narrative and contribute more towards the new story of Nagaland. He added that with the advent of internet revolution and the eruption of social media and the scope of various media platforms, the amount of debated deliberations that are happening on various social media platforms, the Department should put in more effort in such fields. Metha urged the Department and the media houses to tell the success stories of the State despite the hurdles and the challenges faced, because every success story inspires and motivates people.

Metha stated that merely claiming to be the fourth pillar is not enough, but walking that extra mile will ensure that there will be growth in the fourth pillar of democracy. He also urged the press and media houses to give more focus on investigative journalism. Investigative journalism needs the support of the media houses, of the society as a whole, and needs to be backed up by budgets because investigative journalism is not normal reporting but it is about asking questions, putting people in discomfort and this is where the role of the fourth pillar comes in. The Advisor stated the media should act as watchdog of the other three pillars and should also act as the voice of the citizens and help in changing the narrative of the Naga people. Without the freedom of the press and without a vibrant media, democracy does not exist, he opined.

Director, IPR, Er. Z. Tokishe Sema in his exhortation stated that National Press Day is celebrated to honour and acknowledge the Press Council of India which acts as the modern watchdog of free and fair press in the country. He asked the media people present to strive for the betterment of the society and to help in the upliftment of the state and the country as a whole.

On relationship between government and press, Jamir said that much have been discussed, debated, deliberated on all occasions and various commentaries were also made but more important is the relationship between newspapers and its readers, stating that newspapers must focus their attention on the welfare of the common man and in highlighting the problem of the people instead of the speeches of politicians. Speaking on his vision of Nagaland, Jamir also mentioned that people of Nagaland are living in a confused society as no group or society can say which directions they are going.

better incomes for farmers and improve their food security and economy. He hoped that the project in the State will continue to help the farmers learn new and innovative farming technologies for agricultural growth. Alam emphasized on the need to train on global best practices so that farmers can take advantage of the available natural resources such as land and water, as well as agricultural technologies for better outcomes. Han Ulac Demirag appreciated the Government of Nagaland for their commitment towards the implementation of the project and assured to extend help in every possible way during the forthcoming Mid Term Review.

On 18th November 2021, Country Director of IFAD, Han Ulac Demirag in a note stated that he was impressed with the initiatives and achievements and vision of the people, during a visit to a project site at Nerhema and Gariphema village farm along with the APC and Mission Director FOCUS, Nagaland, Y. Kikheto Sema, IAS, State Project Director-FOCUS, S. Tainiu and a team of Agri officials. Demirag expressed satisfaction on the exotic and organic 'greens' cultivated in Nagaland and stressed on the need to tackle on environment and climate related issues by the project. APC Nagaland, Kikheto briefed on the practical and theoretical stages involved in the progress of the projects under FOCUS. His key focus was on the integrated sustainable cropping and stressed on the need to make Jhum sustainable agriculture. Jhum system covers 60 percent of the area under food grain cultivation, and about half of rural households are engaged in jhum cultivation therefore he urged the farmers to study and practice intercropping without further damaging the forest area causing loss of biodiversity, which will contribute in maintaining the ecosystem. He reminded that the site at Nerhema and Gariphema faces critical water shortage due to lack of proper storage and infrastructure hence, crops fails to produce at their fullest capacity. He explained the hardships of cultivation on hilly regions which are in immediate need of water-bodies, road connectivity and storage for the produce.

On 19th November 2021, Country Director, IFAD, Han Ulac Demirag protracted his visit to the southern part of the Angami region to review the progress of activities being implemented under the IFAD-FOCUS. He said the activities and designs have to be made on a systematic build up and a concrete plan, and assured that he will look forward to approve a new structure of packages and design and a model developed to suit the Naga farming activities for the project to progress successfully. APC and Mission Director FOCUS, Nagaland, Y. Kikheto Sema, visiting a FOCUS-IFAD project site at Jakhama, stated that the project was delayed in the implementation due to various reasons relating to parliamentary elections and subsequently the surge of COVID-19 which halted the project and could not be taken up on the date as expected. He proposed to introduce a technology intervention in new tissue culture of potatoes. He stressed that 'potato' is next to rice as far as staple food is concerned and the life shield is more, yet the traditional method of farming and the way the farmers are cultivating in such a terrain area makes it difficult for any surplus production of crops, therefore intervention of this new technology will bring down the headloads and hardships to an easier and sustainable cultivation, he also added that it will produce better production and exotic crops originating from the State. He further requested the IFAD to assist them in sponsoring during the activities taken up with the International Potato Center (CIP) so that the project is not halted anywhere between the developmental stages.

PAIWANG KONYAK CALLS ON UNION MINISTERS

Minister for Transport, Civil Aviation, Railways and Land Resources, P. Paiwang Konyak called on Union Railway Minister, Ashwini Vaishnav

on 22nd November 2021 at his Office, New Delhi. During their meeting, Konyak urged the Union Minister to make Dimapur railway station the terminating point for the Nagaland Express again. The Nagaland Minister pointed out that on two occasions earlier, the State Government had requested the Railway Board to "revoke" the decision to make Ledo station as the terminating point for the Nagaland Express. However, a favourable action from the Railway Board is still awaited. The Union Minister assured that he would personally look into the matter.

The Nagaland Express Train between Dimapur and Guwahati was introduced in 2011. The State Government of Nagaland has maintained that to make Ledo station which is 150 km away from Dimapur, as the terminating point for the Nagaland Express, is not justifiable. The Nagaland Government said that Dimapur station is the 'second highest' revenue station under North East Frontier Railway. The Nagaland Express has been the only passenger train which terminated and started from Dimapur station. Moreover, Dimapur station is the only railway station which serves as the lifeline for the State.

Do tests still work on this variant?

- * Most diagnostic tests continue to work and can detect this variant.
- * Several labs have indicated that for one widely used PCR test, one of the three target genes is not detected (this is called S gene dropout or S gene target failure). This is similar to what we saw with the Alpha variant. So, we can use this PCR test to rapidly identify the likely presence of the new variant, and help us prioritize which samples need to be sent for genome sequencing, in order to confirm the new variant.

Do current vaccines still work on this variant?

- * It is important to get vaccinated for the protection that they provide against the widely circulating variants. Researchers are looking into potential impact on vaccines and other tools.

What can people do to protect themselves?

- * The most important thing people can do is reduce their risk of exposure to the virus. We know how to do so: get vaccinated, wear a mask, keep a distance, avoid poorly ventilated or crowded spaces, keep your hands clean and cough or sneeze into your elbow.
- * The more COVID-19 circulates the more opportunities the virus has to change, the more mutations we will see. It is essential that we all continue to work to reduce the circulation of COVID-19. (Source: WHO)

Universal use of masks, especially in social, religious, or other official gatherings. Masks will reduce transmission in the community and avoid super spreader events or uncontrolled transmission

So, let us celebrate responsibly. Adhere to all Covid Appropriate Behaviours: wear mask at all time as you go outdoors, wash your hands frequently or carry hand sanitizers and avoid over crowded spaces. Do take all recommended doses of the COVID-19 vaccine for optimum level of protection. Let us remember, no one is safe until everyone is safe.
