NEED TO RESTRUCTURE AND RE-ORGANISE NAGALAND POLICE:
DEPUTY CM Y. PATTON

Deputy Chief Minister, in-charge of Home and Border Affairs, Y. Patton addressed the media fraternity at a press conference on 4th May 2023 at PHQ Conference Hall, wherein he mentioned that a high-level committee headed by the DGP has been set up to restructure and re-organize the Nagaland Police so as to make it more efficient on functional and operational lines. He said that modern policing is more about establishing the supremacy of the law through investigation and law enforcement rather than brute force and hence, the committee would look into all aspects of policing through the exercise and make recommendations based on the findings.

Patton said that workable and genuine suggestions are welcome from the public to improve the department, law and order in the State and to create an environment for better development. He mentioned that the DGP Nagaland and the Nagaland Police have launched a war on drugs during the last four months which has resulted in the registering of 101 cases and the arrest of 143 criminals from various parts of the North East for drug-related crimes, and also revealed that the State Police has set up an Anti-Narcotics Task Force booth at the state level with statewide jurisdiction.

Patton also highlighted that the Police Department is looking into internal departmental issues such as the unauthorized absence of police personnel from duty, excessive deployment of bodyguards to State VIPs, and timely withdrawal of vehicles attached to retired officers. In conclusion, he made a clarion call to all concerned including the media fraternity to extend support in order to make the State a better place to live in.

The press briefing was later followed by an interactive session with the media personnel present.

ADVISOR IMKONG IMCHEN ADDRESSES

MEDIA ON ARTICLE 371(A)

Advisor, Information & Public Relations and Soil & Water Conservation, Imkong L. Imchen, during a press conference held at the Directorate of Information & Public Relations, Kohima on 5th May 2023, spoke on the 'Subjective critic on Article 371 (A), more particularly Clause (IV) Ownership and Transfer of Land and its Resources.'

Imkong said that that Nagas vigorously talk and think about safeguarding Article 371(A), which was inserted in Part XXI of the Constitution of India by Constitution (13th Amendment Act 1962), but his individual view is that the very Constitutional Provision of Article 371(A), more particularly Clause IV has become redundant. He highlighted how Article 371(A) was inserted in the Constitution of India by virtue of the 16 Point Agreement of Naga People's Convention (NPC). He stated that, 'Article 371A was by and large propagated by the signatories as the final political emancipation of the Nagas but nonetheless it is observed that there are self-contradicting flaws and undefined paradoxes in the working and implementation of Article 371A.'

While pointing out that no definition or meaning is given with regard to ownership and transfer of land and its resources which is given in Clause IV, Imkong said that this very inherent flaw creates difficulties and confusion in the realm of interpretation. Further, he observed that there is no specific legislative power accorded to the Nagaland Legislative Assembly to legislate with respect to the special provision of Article 371(A) Clause IV. He added that Article 371(A) does not per-se (by itself) provide blanket protection and safeguards to its special provisions.

Imkong stated that after obtaining the opinion of then legal luminaries like H. M. Seervai, F. S. Nariman, R. C. Sarkar and M. Hidayatullah in the 1980s, all of whom concurred that 'Land and its resources' as used in Article 371(A) Clause IV includes mines and minerals, accordingly the Nagaland Legislative Assembly (NLA) passed a resolution on July 26, 2010 to the effect that laws made by the Parliament on petroleum and natural gas would be inapplicable in the State of Nagaland with retrospective effect, and subsequently invited 'Expressions of Interest (EOI)' from companies to explore and exploit the 11 oil and gas fields it identified across 11 districts in the State.

However, this legislative initiative by the Government of Nagaland was extinguished by the Government of India, Ministry of Home Affairs by its Office Memorandum dated 23-05-2023 wherein it was stated that, 'the Union Ministry is of the considered view that Article 371A (a) does not confer legislative power to the Legislative Assembly of Nagaland on regulation and development of mineral oil. The power to make law in respect of subjects covered under List-I of the Seventh Schedule of the Constitution including entry 53 of List-I, rests with the Parliament. Therefore, the resolution passed by the Nagaland Assembly in July, 2010 is unconstitutional and invalid.'

Imkong viewed that the entirety of the matter is palpably erroneous, incurably not tenable and manifestly arbitrary. It is nowhere seen on the records that the Mines and Minerals (Regulation and Development) Act 1957, has been approved by the Nagaland Legislative Assembly as an applicable statutory law in the State from the date of statehood till date. He added, 'It is therefore in the light of the legislative process initiated by the State of Nagaland and the concurrent nullifying executive orders so pronounced by the Union of India, the so called sacrosanct provisions of Article 371 (A) more particularly Clause 4 which envisaged ownership and transfer of land and its resources, has from the threshold to hitherto, failed and has tormented down to non-est bottomless pit.'

Addressing the gathering, Advisor Zhaleo requested the Administrators present to take this opportunity to acquaint themselves with the challenges as they are the ones who implement the schemes of the department. He also expressed hope that the administrative officers will give their best in the management and maintenance of the Urban Local Bodies. The Advisor mentioned that earlier there were only 19

He also announced on the occasion that the Government of India has approved for upgradation of the School of Nursing to for youth. Unfortunately, in Nagaland, such recreational centers are very few and mostly confined to metro cities. These facilities are not meeting the needs of the people around them because they are mostly privately owned businesses and may sometimes cost too much for young adolescents to access them. However, for most parts of Nagaland, no such centres (privately owned or government-run) currently exist.

An acute shortage of 'free' community recreational centers compels most youths to either spend their free time at home or in the streets leaving to numerous juvenile-related problems like depression, juvenile crimes, substance abuse, teen pregnancies, etc. The Department stated that the role of such centres is crucial
